

Up & Running Heat Intelligence

With Up & Running Heat Intelligence, you get off to a better – and faster – start using Heat Intelligence. We set everything up, get you familiar with the tool – and if you have questions, we have the answers.

This gives you the best possible conditions to quickly find areas of interest with potential leakages, bypasses, abnormal consumption patterns, high return temperatures or to start using data as the foundation for your maintenance plans.

Who is this for?

Up & Running Heat Intelligence is for you who want a quick start and ensure you have the right foundation for getting full value from Heat Intelligence from day one.

What do you get?

Setup and configuration

One of our product specialists takes care of the installation, setup and configuration of Heat Intelligence. This includes providing access to the right users, activating your subscription as well as testing and verifying that everything works properly.

You get a full walk-through of your new tool to get familiar with its different features and user interface so that you are all set to start efficiently locating and monitoring areas of interest in your distribution network.

We also go through your distribution network with you to spot potential areas of interests for you to act on now or to continue monitoring.

Ask your Kamstrup contact for more information.
